Unofficial Election Results: Stines Wins Mayor's Race; Moorman Re-elected

Third Ward Councilman Elijah Stines won the race to be Boone's next mayor and Fourth Ward Councilman Terry Moorman won his reelection, according to unofficial election results.

Incumbent Cory Henson in Ward 2 and At-large Councilman Kyle Angstrom were unopposed in their re-election bids. Meanwhile, the results of the five-person contest for two park commission seats were extremely close with David Sherry and Susan Thorngren currently in the lead.

Election results will be canvassed and certified by the Boone County Board of Supervisors next week.

Stines, who is the associate chair of ISU's mathematics department, has captured 41.1% of the unofficial vote compared to 33.3% for Tracy Anderson and 25.5% for Denny Hamman. With 2,982 total votes cast, Stines received 1,226 votes to 995 for Anderson and 761 for Hamman.

Moorman received 245 of the 427 total votes cast in Ward 4 to defeat challenger Patrick Shaw by a 57.3% to 42.6% margin. Shaw received 182 votes.

In the park commission contest, Sherry has 1,076 votes (24.35%), followed by Thorngren with 943 votes (21.34%), Marsha Moorman with 931 votes (21.07%), Alex Grimes with 926 votes (20.96%) and Sarah Nizzi with 542 votes (12.27%).
